

Show & Tell

Choose one of the following topics by checking the appropriate box. Once you've chosen your topic, choose one single aspect of it on which to focus on in Quick Read format. Don't try to tell everything about the subject — just one piece.

- Homecoming
- Fall sport (choose just one)
- Current fashion trends
- Siblings

- Friends
- Jobs
- Music
- Time

- Weekends
- Food
- Homework

Focus: _____

Example: time; Focus: getting ready for school

Consider a variety of Quick Read formats in which to convey facts, figures and feelings about the topic you chose above. They can be interactive formats or infographics. They could be a series of anecdotes, descriptive paragraphs or quotes. They're often packaged with graphics. Select the format based on the content.

- » Figures: table, index, stats, chart, scoreboard, pie chart
- » Facts: fact box, listing, top 10, summary points, informational map, diagram, definitions, profile
- » Opinions: quotes, question-answer, for/against, personal narrative, journal, advice
- » Time: schedule, calendar, timeline
- » Interactive: fill-in, matching, connect the dots, color an object, check test, crossword puzzle, word search, quiz

Idea # 1:

Quick Read format:

Sketch, if necessary to make the idea more clear:

Why did you select this format? Why will it be interesting for your readers?

Idea # 2:

Quick Read format:

Sketch, if necessary to make the idea more clear:

Why did you select this format? Why will it be interesting for your readers?

Idea # 3:

Quick Read format:

Sketch, if necessary to make the idea more clear:

Why did you select this format? Why will it be interesting for your readers?

START RIGHT 6.1 | ACTIVITY

